

BLISS CARMAN INTERPRETED HIS READING

Dealt With Only One Type
Of Poems

POET LAUREATE

Selections Related to Life and Spirit of the Universe

In an attempt to bring before his audience the ideas underlying life, his creative spirit and the universe as a whole, Mr. Bliss Carman gave a reading of his lyrics and poems chosen at random from his works. This time the reading was of a unusual nature, comprising poems of only one type and general thought. Mr. Carman said he wished to read a selection of recreation, summed up in the beauty of nature, as a gift of welfare, a spirit of regeneration, and a teacher of all truth.

It is poetry business in life, he said, to stimulate our spirit, for human happiness and life as a whole. It must teach us that despite our unpreventable sorrows we can live each day of our lives as a new one, full of hope and joy. He commenced by reading "This is another day" and "Twelfth Night Star" and others which illustrated this teaching.

Closely akin in thought were several poems that followed, telling of Canada's natural beauties which are ours to enjoy, he read "The Rivers of Canada," "The Song of the Kicking Horse," and "Down in the Rocky Pass" which breathe the spirit of the pioneer and of beauty everlasting. "Kaledon Road" reminds one that beauty is the reward of steadfast spirit. He also read "Morning in the hills," a meditative and descriptive poem.

He proceeded to speak of the creative spirit of the universe, which leads to its own creation. Mortals, such as the painter, musician, pioneers have the power of creation. He then read "A Spring Poem".

Whereupon he quoted from Whitman to illustrate that human happiness was the only good in the world. This was followed by "Vestigium," "Easter Eve," and "Te Deum" which point out the glory of God's nature, our closeness to Him and the privileges that are ours.

He interpolated "Our Fathers of Old" and "The Astrologer's Song," two poems by Kipling he concluded by reading his well known "City of Sham," a legendary poem filled with beautiful imagery.

Mr. Justice Sturtevant occupied the chair. Col. Bovey was also on the platform.

TWO M.S.P.E. TEAMS DEFEAT Y.W.C.A.

First Game Fairly Close, with Score 32-23

The first and second M.S.P.E. basketball teams defeated the Y.W.C.A. yesterday evening, the score of the first game being 32-23, while the second game ended 38-25.

The game between the first teams was worked by fast play and rapid passing throughout. The first toss went to M. S. P. E., Miss Ballard scoring. The second toss went to the Y.W.C.A. team when the forward, catching under the basket, had the misfortune to dislocate her knee. The ball was then tossed under the Y.W.C.A. basket, travelling to the other end and back again, the Y.W. team scoring. The score continued to rise more or less evenly and at the end of the first half stood 17-15 in favor of M.S.P.E.

During the second half the score mounted fairly steadily on both sides until M.S.P.E. were ruled a series of free throws which gave them a decided lead. The Y.W.C.A. then scored and M. S. P. E. with three successive baskets brought the game to a conclusion, winning by 32-23.

The game between the second teams was not as rapid as that of the first teams, the ball being fumbled considerably, the combination and passing improved during the second half, however, and the game went to M.S. P.E., the score being 32-25.

The line-ups were as follows:—

MUSICAL TOMORROW IN UNION

Attractive Programme Has Been Arranged

MUSIC CLUB

Mrs. A. F. T. Ross Will Be Contributing Artist

The first Sunday musicale of the McGill Music Club will be held in the Union Ball room tomorrow at three o'clock. What promises to be a most attractive programme has been arranged by the executive of the society, and numbers ranging from the works of Brahms to Mozart will be rendered.

Mrs. A. F. T. Ross who is well known to the musical public of Montreal has consented to be present and will contribute to the programme. The coming of an outside artist especially one with the musical abilities of Mrs. Ross, has aroused an added interest in the musicale to which all students will be freely welcomed and to which they may bring their friends who should be interested.

The Music Club offers some of the best talent possible around college for the musicale. W. P. Shephard, and Lawrence Hart who will play an arrangement of Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 3 for two pianos are popular musicians around McGill. The quartette of the club, consisting of E. Shephard, Lindsay Hovey, Howard Elliot and R. H. Bryson, will render several selections among which will be the well known Mozart Quartette in D Major. George Wooley will play several violin numbers.

Those who will remember the Sunday Musicales which were conducted several years ago will recall the success they were at that time. To newcomers at college especially, the Music Club extends particular welcome to this first musicale of the season. Those who like good music will be assured of a delightful programme, it is stated.

R.V.C. TEAMS TO PLAY MACDONALD

Two Basketball Matches in High School To-day

This morning at 11.30 o'clock the R.V.C. First and Second Basketball Teams will play the opening games of the season. The matches are against Macdonald College, and will be played in the Montreal High School Girls' Gym.

As several of last year's first and second teams have graduated, there is a good deal of new material on both teams. First Year, especially, have contributed to the new line-ups.

The inter-class games were finished last Saturday when the Third Year succeeded in winning the championship. The whole series of games was most successful, much enthusiasm with the friendly rivalry resulted in several good teams and brought to light some good material.

Since these games practices have been held to work up for the College teams. Players have been turning out well and much improvement has been shown, though a good deal of hard work lies before them before the Intercollegiate standard is reached. The College line-ups are by no means final, and there are still several chances for positions on the teams.

On Thursday afternoon a practice game was held with the M. S. P. E. in which the R. V. C. made a very good showing and prospects for the year are cheerful.

The line-ups for to-day's games are as follows:—

WILL BROADCAST MOCK PARLIAMENT

Special Event Scheduled For Tuesday

What will be the first Mock Parliament ever broadcast in Canada and which the very first since the coming of radio, will take place next Tuesday, the 16th, when three chief speakers from each of the leading parties in the McGill Mock Parliament will argue the pros and cons of senate reform. Arranged by the Northern Electric Company the address will be sent out from Station CHYC and the name of McGill will be carried to practically every corner of the continent.

For the Government Arthur Lloyd, prime minister will lead the debate. With him will be MacLeod and James Grant Glasco will, as opposition leader oppose the senate reform bill that will be introduced. Those who will speak with him will be Quinlan and Diplock.

Col. Bovey will introduce the speakers and outline the various aspects of the Mock Parliaments, which have become a regular and most firm institution around college.

The regular session of the parliament will be held on Thursday evening when the new government with a newly-formed cabinet will place its policy before the members of the house. The advent of a reform party on the cross branches will add greatly to the keenness of the debate on this occasion it is expected.

B.W. AND F. FINALS FOR GUNN TROPHY

Ten Bouts to Take Place this Afternoon

To-day is the big day for the Freshmen in B. W. and F. The finals of the Gunn Trophy meet will be settled this afternoon at 4 P. M. in Molson Hall. There will be ten bouts, three wrestling and seven boxing. The faculty winning the most bouts will receive the Gunn Cup to be held for the year.

The elimination bouts were fought Thursday and by the showing of the competitors there is great promise of matches well worth seeing to-day. Those who saw the Tyro meet can be sure of seeing bouts as good if not better.

In the Wrestling Giulianelli who won the 135lb weight in the tyro meet will come against Shaw, and the winner of this match will meet Curtis. The 147lb. bout between Zaritsky and Ansovin promises to be well worth seeing, judging from the showing both men made Thursday.

There will be two bouts in the 118lb. boxing. In the first S. B. Cohen meets H. Cohen, and Solomon fights the winner of this match. There will also be two bouts in both the 125lb. and the 135lb. classes. Barker fights Kellan in the first, and Cope meets the winner, and in the next class Dixon who has shown himself to be clever on his feet, fights Dowling, and the winner of this bout goes against Holt.

In the last bout Taylor who was in the finals of the Tyro meet in the 147lb. class has for an opponent Donovan who has been practising hard lately and is expected to put up a good show.

Wrestling:

135lbs. Giulianelli vs. Shaw

135lbs. Curtis vs. —

147lbs. Zaritsky vs. Ansovin

Boxing:

118lbs. S. B. Cohen vs. H. Cohen

118lbs. Salton vs. —

126lbs. Barker vs. Kellan

126lbs. Cope vs. —

135lbs. Dixon vs. Dowling

135lbs. Holt vs. —

147lbs. Taylor vs. Donovan

LECTURE BY RADIO

IN GERMAN COLLEGE

A radio university has recently been started in Berlin. The new institution is designed to bring the school to the students rather than the students to the school. While sitting comfortably at home, the student may hear lectures and take notes and derive just as much benefit as if he were in the classroom.

The most famous researchers, scientists, and teachers are to be put in the service of this university. They will lecture upon different subjects the same as in school and regular high school and university courses will be given. The difference lies in the fact that the professors will lecture to the whole world as their class, and

NEW PARTY ORGANIZES FOR REFORM

Historic Gathering Elects
Leader

JACK SPECTOR

Defects of Present Parties
Scored

At an historic meeting yesterday afternoon, an assemblage of eminent politicians met to elect Jack Spector leader of the new party entering political life, and to formulate a platform of vital importance.

It was decided to name the party The Reform Party in view of the pressing reforms contemplated in the National interest.

The meeting placed itself on record as being directly opposed to the introduction of the present Canadian Party System and nomenclature into the Mock Parliament of McGill. Because such alignment exists in English and European universities generally, is no reason for hatching the prejudice at McGill. The spirit of broad tolerance and academic unity which has been so characteristic of the University in the past can ill afford the fostering of political schisms.

Since the bill of the next Session concerns the cutting down of the Senate's powers as contained in the Act of 1911 of the Imperial Parliament a most irrational policy for a Rational Party, and since the Conservative Government whose sole aim is to conserve itself at all costs will fight for the status quo of the Senate, the Reform Party proposes to introduce an amendment to the bill which will demand the reform of the Senate on the lines laid down by the Constitution of the Irish Free State 1922.

"There is no doubt that of the three plans, that of the Reform Party is the sanest, safest and most logical," said a prominent member of that party.

Among those who are at present associated with the Reform Party are: Eugene, Forsey, S. Schwabach, H. Adkman, H. A. Morol, H. O'Donnell, Campbell, Goldenberg, Almond etc. etc.

According to the party leaders the complete success of the party is assured. The McGill electorate is heartily dissatisfied with the present inadequate government which is busy looking for a cabinet and a policy which it cannot find. The conservative government pleads conservatism, and that after meeting defeat through a bill designed to disperse $250,000,000 from the public treasury.

The Reform Platform includes:—1 Reform of the Tariff—permitting indirect importation of raw materials by importing horses at a reduced rate.

2 Appointment of a tariff Commission for scientific study of tariff issues.

3 Amelioration of unemployment conditions.

4 Immigration, beneficial to the country at large.

HEBREW RELIGION AT STUDY GROUP

Will Meet in Room "A"
Strathcona Hall

"The Origin and Development of the Hebrew Religion" is the subject of the Macabean Study Group will deal with to-morrow evening when it will meet in Room "A" Strathcona Hall at 8.15 p.m. sharp.

L. J. Wainer B. A., Law '27, will introduce the subject with an outline of the history of the Hebrew religion. A. Edel, Arts '27 will deal specifically with the origins of the religion.

Following the usual custom the manifold aspects of the problem in hand will be discussed by those assembled. The previous meetings have all been pronounced highly successful and gradually the various phases of problems that are of the most vital interest to Jews have been unfolded to the members. Coming as it does after a discussion of origin and development of the Jewish people a consideration of the evolution of a religion that greatly affected subsequent ages will result, it is expected, in one of the most interesting meetings of the group yet held.

SCIENTISTS AND THEOLOGICALS, WIN

Interclass Basketball Provides Interesting Game

In one of the most interesting games played this season in the Fresh-Soph League the first year Science team defeated the Medicine freshmen by the score of 21-11.

The game started at a quick pace was fast throughout. Consiglio and Walker, the Science defencemen, worked their way down several times for pretty shots. The Medicine men worked hard but found themselves unable to check the flooding onslaught of the Science defence. At half time the score was 12 to 7 in favour of Science.

The second half began with the Science team on a retreating; several baskets while their opponents had difficulty in starting the tally column for the second half. However they soon found themselves and the game ended in a keen struggle by Medicine for the ball. The final score was 21-11.

The other game between Theologs and Dentistry resulted in a win for the former by the score of 17-9.

One-sided games seem to be the rule for the Sophomore division of the League and from the start it was evident that the game would go to the stronger Theologian team. In the first half the Ministers piled up 13 points while the Dentistry team playing off colour were unable to make either a basket or a foul. In the second half the Dental manager fielded a new team and before long Berwick put some heart into his team-mates by scoring a long shot. This seemed to be what the Dentists were waiting for they went after that ball with renewed vigour and soon had 9 points toward who had scored nearly all the Theologs' baskets in the first half was watched closely in the latter period and his side were able to get only four more points. Horman and Berwick for Dentistry were prominent while the winners had good men in Steward and Scarie.

SAYS FREE VERSE FORM LEGITIMATE

But Lyric Form for Passionate Feelings

BLISS CARMAN

Famous Poet Interviewed by
"Daily"

That free verse is a legitimate form for the expression of certain emotions was the opinion expressed by Bliss Carman the eminent Canadian poet when interviewed yesterday afternoon by a representative of the Daily, but the finer and more passionate feelings of man naturally take a lyrical and essentially rhythmic form of expression.

When asked concerning the modern poets he lauded Kipling and his contemporaries such as Yeats, Millay and Massfield, who can produce works of wonderful beauty out of what we consider the carelessness of modern life. The locomotive will be just as beautiful in the eyes of futurity as the chariot is to ours.

While art should be universal in its appeal there is room for an artistic interpretation of Canada's individuality. A great Canadian novel or poem would of necessity be different from an English or American one, but no matter how local in colour to appeal its appeal would be universal. A tale of French Canada is quite as acceptable to New York publishers as is one nearer home, if well written. This statement should be borne in mind by those who advocate Canadian magazines without comparing the numbers of the reading public here and in the United States. Mr. Carman, however, did not wish to criticize Canadian publications on the contrary, he praised the "Canadian Forum" and mentioned some of its articles as worthy of exceptional esteem.

For those who desire to enter into a career of professional writing, he suggested that journalistic work was of the best possible training. He mentioned the assistance that could be given to young writers by such men as Dona of the New York Sun, who has been so prominent in encouraging originality in young reports. Mr. Carman was very interested in the "Literary Supplement" and readily promised to send an article for publication at some later date.

Up the winding stairs, hung with many a shimmering lantern, past the spacious lounge room, redolent with the scent of the numbing pines, or up to the doors of ball room, went the static crowd of youth and beauty. Such was the journey upward. Above their joyous laughter, could be heard enticing strains of rhythmic jazz, coming from the Ball Room. Eagerly they flung open the doors—what a glorious sight met their eyes—A great broad space enclosed in another forest. Gay tinsel, red and green streamers, strings of lights and balls of brittle substance scattered careless profusion upon the trees.

Soon a crowd of merry makers had assembled; the profuse strains of Ad-ney's orchestra had filled the large forest glade; now a thousand hearts beat happily and two thousand feet glided swiftly over the green sward, the rendez-vous of nymphs and naiads.

So all night long the sound of merriment rang through the sylvan haunts, carrying many a cry of ecstasy and outburst of mirth.

It was time for the midnight banquet feast, down the broad stairs tripped the happy couples and into the banquet hall to taste of the delicacies served up in regal manner.

Presently they had feasted and slowly back to the ball room they went. And far into the night the revelries continued, till the noise of music died away.

MONTREAL, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1924.

THE THING TO DO

The Toronto University Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing team is by report responsible for the statement that they would rather perform before a McGill crowd than before any other. Presumably the conduct of the crowd at the last Intercollegiate Assault-At-Arms gave rise to this flattering remark. The adjective "flattering" is used advisedly, albeit with due deference to the sentiment expressed, for it would be a reflection on our sportsmanship to regard the remark as complimentary.

Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing are distinguishable to a marked degree from sports as football or hockey in that they are personal and individual encounters. The element of team play is lacking, each exponent depending entirely on his own efforts. It is therefore unnecessary for the individual to feel that he has co-operation; more is it essential that he rely on his personal powers alone, and that he receives no encouragement, nor his opponent the opposite, during the progress of the bout. This we think is a recognized principle in all so-called individual sports. It is correct for instance, in tennis for a spectator to clap a particularly brilliant stroke or exciting rally, but only when the play is completed, and the point awarded. Golf is bound up with etiquette, and rightly so, for here concentration of attention is the essence of the game, and so spectators and opponents are required to remain silent while the play is proceeding, nor may they at any time resort to tactics calculated to put a player "off his game."

Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing, but peculiarly the first, are, in our opinion, in the same class as the foregoing examples. Cheering a boxer, who rallies and reattacks his hitherto successful opponent, does more than show appreciation for his die-hard spirit. It has, to a certain degree, the same effect as aid in the form of several supporters suddenly appearing in the ring would have. It may enable an inferior boxer to defeat a better man who on account of circumstances is before a strange crowd. A laugh at the seemingly ludicrous wild swing of a weary boxer is not only bad sportsmanship but also bad taste, showing as it does a lack of sympathy for the punishment which accounts for his condition. One should never forget that the blows inflicted are falling on the inmates of the ring, and not upon the spectators.

There is no particular credit attached to good sportsmanship, since it is to be presumed. The absence of it however, is open to the severest censure. If some one remarks that we are in the habit of having clean hands we may feel flattered, but surely not complimented. A remark to the contrary, merited, would as surely create in anyone a feeling of shame. Let us therefore exercise the utmost care that there be no blot upon our escutcheon.

CONDENSED COMMENT

With a special outside singer, and the best talent that the McGill Music Club can offer, the first Sunday Musicales for this season will be held to-morrow afternoon at the Union. The Music club is providing for students and their friends a rare musical treat, and is at the same time making it plain that the cultural side of extra-curricular activity is not being neglected at the University. Those who are interested in this particular form of art are being offered an opportunity to spend what is sure to be a pleasant afternoon. The Music Club has had little time to rest since their successful Burke Concert and are to be complimented on the fact that they are carrying out this second large undertaking with so little respite.

Dear Sir:—Owing the laws governing your correspondence column I must address any remarks intended for the worthy Magog whose letter attacking an article which I wrote in the Literary Supplement to you, appeared in your columns the day before yesterday. However were I writing more directly to that gentleman it should be in this wise:—

Dear Magog:—Of course I may be quite wrong, but I rather think you are a naughty old serpent. You suggest that I have an Elizabethan mind:

Now Magog, I have done my best to encourage you to attack me: I expect you to continue the controversy. It doesn't really matter twopence which of us is right, or indeed if either of us is. Let us therefore, by all means go on slinging ink at each other, I assure you it will be great fun.

Yours kindly,

VESPASIANO.

P. S. There is only one way to soothe my pocket, Magog:

The Editor:

McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—I observe that a letter which appeared in your number 61 of volume XIV over the signature of "Magog" has been generally taken seriously although the contents showed an evident attempt at frivolity. On the other hand, there is a general feeling that a very dangerous sentiment is represented by the following (quoted from the letter): "To publish in an article of a college 'daily one's personal views on a college matter when they are in opposition to the will of the majority of the students of the university is, to put it mildly, 'very bad taste.' There follows an attack on Vespasiano, which, if not justified, is at least entertaining."

The letter referred to was apparently the result of hot indignation over article on Modern and Medieval Universities by one Vespasiano. The object of this present epistle is both to point out an error and to commend an idea; the second was the result of the first. From Vespasiano's article we gather that he would have a large-scale open-air drama take the place of the public game. Magog interprets this to mean a general rough-and-tumble affair participated in by the student-body in general. Magog apparently condemns this, but Magog describes in vivid language an affair which might as a matter of fact, become a venerable and cherished institution—something which might deservedly replace the present system of mass-amusement where thousands yell and suffer over the physical exertions of a baker's dozen of football or hockey players. We may perhaps some day have a real outlet for the superfluous energy of all the students and not of only twenty-four, and a means of developing the town of all the students and not of only the specialists. The thing is worth considering and Magog is to be thanked. Thanking you for your valuable space.

I remain
Yours, etc.

CROSS WORDS

What's an Australian bird of three letters beginning with e—m—u?
The college in infected. Cross-worditis is eating its pernicious way into the hearts of the bright young men of the institution.

To the uninitiated we must give the assurance that a cross-word is not necessarily a cross word. The cross word comes in only when, in the midst of a thrilling history reading, your neighbor punches your solar plexus and asks for a twenty-one letter word meaning "the accusation of one's unwholeness" and a fifty letter word meaning a "scarpous deterioration." And the ensuing cross word is not limited to fifty letters.

In every alcove, and, it is rumored, in many lecture rooms, shirt-sleeved devotees of the great god Cross-Word are racking their brains to find those missing words.

Biology professors are going crazy, trying to answer the requests of students for seventeen letter names of prehistoric African reptiles. English teachers mobbed by angry students demanding obsolete variants of the word "knowledge," are demanding "time and a half" for overtime. The very machinery of the College is threatened by the spread of the dread plague.

The fraternity pledgee at last has a raison d'être. The ubiquitous creature may be seen tumbling into the library at the behest of a lord and master to find the obsolete dialectical form of the Scotch word "parchy."

Alas for the days of yesterday! (Or is it the "years of yesterday?") Plato has disappeared from the list of Concours sports. (Shades of King Lion of the Golden Tooth!) And the alcoves that once resounded with the ping of the pattering Plato, now the benighted puzzlers for words, ring with the wretched requests of words and more words.

The querulous cry of the cross-worder creeps to the skies:

Ay, Bee, See, Dee, Fe, Eff, Gee, Atch, Eyo, Jay, Kay, Elomenopee, Kew, Arr, Eas, and Tee, Yew, Vee, Doubleyou, and Ex, Wy, Zee. Happy, happy shall we be when we learn our Aybeecsee. —The Campus.

WALTER JOHNSON OUT HUNTING
Reno, Nev., Nov. 24.—While the baseball world was speculating today on the future of Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington American League club, the twirler was out of reach on a hunting expedition.

Johnson's reported withdrawal from a deal to purchase the Oakland, Pacific Coast League club, because of the lack of support to finance the transaction, will necessitate a rearrangement of his plans, but he refused to discuss his situation when he arrived here yesterday from Oakland.

Joe Engle scout for the Washington Americans has been after Johnson for the past few weeks attempting to convince the pitcher that he should sign a three-year contract with the Washingtonians at "a large salary." Johnson said he probably would have something to say when he returned from the hunting trip.

GENUINENESS OF HOLY GRAIL
CUP IS DOUBTED
Interesting Discussion of Origin of Chalice Found in 1910 Given by Princeton Archaeologist.

(The following article was written for the Princetonian by Professor C. R. Morey of the Department of Art and Archaeology in explanation of an antique communion cup found in Antioch, Syria, in 1910. This cup, a brief description of which is given below, was considered by many archaeologists to be the historical Holy Grail and subsequently much controversy arose over its real origin.

The cup consists of two parts, an inner cup and an outer shell designed as a holder. The elaborate carvings on the surface of the shell represent ten apostles and two representations of Christ. Certain scholars have announced that in their opinion these figures are actual portraits by an artist who lived in the time of Christ and furthermore that the Chalice of Antioch is the cup that Christ used at the Last Supper.

Professor Morey of Princeton has a different view on the subject. He states that the cup, if not an actual fake is probably by its shape and "un-antique surface-working," a sixteenth century heirloom.)

By Professor C. R. Morey
The age that is claimed for the Chalice of Antioch and the recent interesting article by Professor Newbolt of the University of Pennsylvania in the Ladies Home Journal which goes so far as to suggest that the original cup was the one used in the Last Supper, make it an object which must command the attention of all the Christian world. For this reason, if for no other the piece demands most careful consideration from archaeologists and a very rigid sifting of the evidence on which its claim to so great an antiquity is based. It is unfortunate that there is no complete and adequate record of its discovery which would obviate all questions as to the age of the object. It must be confessed, however, that the record of the find is far from complete and the standing of the monument in Christian Art must be determined by other means.

With this in mind archaeologists are likely to be troubled by several discrepancies which appear when one examines the technique and style of the Chalice. The first is the fact of the unusual preservation of the outer envelope of the cup which seems not even to have lost its solder, although the solder is commonly absent in the finds of antique silver. Another is the fact that the oxidation of the inner cup does not seem to have affected the outer envelope to the extent that one would expect. The technique of the figures and vine ornament is not, in my opinion, a good one, but seems irregular and the figures of the Apostles and of Christ, if one judges them by the original and not from the etchings which have been made of them impress one as of rather inferior and sketchy finish. The design of the vine ornament, again, is rather hesitatingly done with holes in the pattern and with curious stretches of bare stem, accompanied by a very uninventive and crude handling of the tendrils, which is hard to parallel in antique decoration. The unusual elaboration of the outer envelope is in contrast to the very clumsy row of rosettes which determines the design at the top.

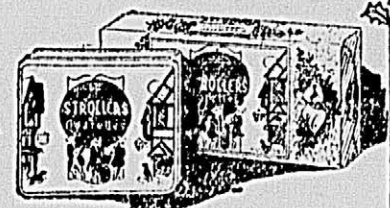

In the First Century the ornamenting of the silver cup was that of the "crusta" which was a repoussé piece of a silver fastened on an inner cup but not perforated. The use of a
